Debra Fotheringham

Solitude is most often the birthplace of artistry. Such was the case for Utah-born singer/songwriter Debra Fotheringham. Her passion for songwriting began as a teenager in the quiet of late nights alone. Given as a Christmas gift at the age of 13, Debra's guitar quickly became the fulcrum for her creative energy. After failed attempts at learning the violin and the trumpet, the guitar was the perfect fit, because it uncovered and facilitated Debra's most expressive gift...her voice. Called clear, clean, and effortlessly melodic, Debra's voice can be smooth and lyrical one moment, while rich and emotional the next. Debra uses her voice like an instrument, guiding listeners through the dynamics of the music...and the meaning.

A little bit jazz, a little bit folk, a little bit rock, a little bit pop, a little bit bluegrass – Debra's music is hard to pin down. Its earthy physicality has a wonderful and tangible immediacy, but defies most common descriptors and genres.
