Nancy Hanson's songwriting is simple, honest and from the heart. Her guitar playing and stage presence are strong and compelling. Add a voice that is at once warm and shimmering, and you begin to see and feel the deep talents of this wonderful artist. Through lyrical and musical images and insights, Nancy's songs reflect the fabric of life.

Nancy has taken her music to many great little venues throughout the country, including the Bluebird Café in Nashville, the Fast Folk Café in New York City, and the campfires of the Kerrville Folk Festival. She has been a winner in many songwriting and performance contests, including the Telluride Troubadour Contest, the Kerrville New Folk Contest, and most recently the John Lennon Songwriting Contest.

With Opening Act Kenny Favero

In the last couple of years Kenny Favero has spent most of his time performing his original music for many different audiences including The Sacramento Valley Music Industry Association and representatives of the Nashville Songwriters Association International. "You Never Know," a pop single co-written by Kenny and published by Songcastle music (ASCAP), has gained considerable recognition in the Christmas music industry in Southern California. With a smooth blend of folk, rock, and a little country, Kenny's music is sure to delight audiences of all ages.
